

LORENZ

Wine Making – a family tradition since 1725

The Lorenz family winery is located in the heart of Rheinhessen, the number-one and best vineyard region in Germany. German organic wines made from grapes grown in Rheinhessen owe their fruitiness and rich bouquet to the mild climate and extraordinary soil in this area.

Wines range from dry to sweet and they are produced with loving care from their own vineyards in traditional fashion with the benefit of modern knowledge and techniques. The Lorenz family does all of the work in the vineyards and cellars themselves. This allows them to guarantee the purity and quality of every bottle.

Their Philosophy

Enjoy the goodness! That means for Lorenz making wine with passion. Together they put love, care and time in their wine, and you can taste the difference! Organic producing means that they are committed to responsible care of nature. They accomplish this by renouncing the use of synthetically produced insecticides, herbicides, fungicides and artificial fertilizers. In addition to these measures, they ensure their vineyard maintains a natural and healthy balance by sowing a variety of wild herbs, legumes and by using organic humus fertilization. Lorenz is a member of EcoVin, the “Bundesverband ökologischer Weinbau” (Federal Association of Ecologic Wine Producers), a regulated organic cooperation.

Lorenz Vineyards – German organic wines

The vineyards are spread over 15 hectares ideally located in the heart of the Rheinhessen wine region. They are arranged to provide the ideal combination of economic and ecological cultivation. Ideal climate and land composition contribute to extraordinary grapes. Soil structure ranges from sandy loam, loess, weathered quartzite to heavy slate.
